

Lunch at Providores, focusing on Trinity Hill Syrah »

A great value, fairly serious Riesling

This is a strong contender for one of the best value whites of the year, at the discounted price of £7.99. It's from a producer I reviewed a short while ago, Prinz von Hessen.

Prinz von Hessen Riesling Kabinett Trocken 2008 Rheingau, Germany

11.5% alcohol. Taut lime and lemon nose with a hint of honey. The palate is crisp and fresh with lovely precision, and savoury lime and mineral notes. There's some tangerine and lemon pip character, too. Brilliant value for money. 90/100 (£9.99 Majestic, £7.99 each if you buy two)

September 21st, 2010 | Tags: germany, riesling | Category: germany, riesling, wine reviews

1 comment to A great value, fairly serious Riesling

Daniel

September 22nd, 2010 at 11:45 am

I would love to get hold of this wine, but it doesn't appear on the Majestic website.

Any directions gratefully received.